The Definitive Account of the Air Apaches

By Marc L. Tavasci

Ever since I first read about the strafing units of the 5th Air Force in World War II, I have been fascinated by their stories. Flying in at treetop or masthead height, they decimated Japanese airfields, facilities and shipping from New Guinea, Rabaul and the Dutch East Indies through the Philippines, Formosa and the southern coast of Japan.

The 345th Bombardment Group, known as the "Air Apaches", was one of the premier strafing groups in the 5th Air Force. Flying B-25 Mitchell bombers, most of which were modified to carry extra .50 calibre machine guns in the nose, the Air Apaches earned a fearsome reputation as they carved a swath of destruction through Japanese defenses.

Covering nearly every mission flown by the group, this book is a comprehensive and extremely detailed account of the war fought by the Air Apaches. Loaded with pictures, including many in color, and a section of color profiles showcasing the very colorful markings of the various squadrons, you will never find another book which covers the group this well. The photos are fantastic and include hundreds you will not find anywhere else. The author has gone to great pains to identify each plane and/or person shown in the various pictures, most of which came from personal collections of members of the group itself. The narrative contains lots of details about what individual crews went through while attacking Japanese bases and shipping, as well as the aftermath of those who were shot down and ended up being rescued or subsequently captured.

This is without a doubt one of the best books on the air war versus the Japanese I have ever read, and it is the first in what looks to be a very extensive series about the 5th AF's bomb groups. Fans of the 5th AF, the B-25 and/or the War in the Pacific must add this book to their library--I can guarantee you'll never find a better book on the 345th.

"WARPATH ACROSS THE PACIFIC" best squadron history to date!

By chopper

This book on the 345th bombardment group "Air Apaches" in the pacific theater of world war two, is a must read for anyone who is interested in aviation history during the second world war. Lawrence Hickey has not only created a complete history of this famous outfit but the photos that the group took when overseas, both during combat and non-combat stand downs, are stunning in their clarity. Each photo was laser enhanced and put in the exact order that they were taken by a day by day operation in each of the chapters in the book, and there hundreds of photos! There are very good color profiles of the group's B-25 aircraft as well, a very nice addition to a already great book. "WARPATH ACROSS THE PACIFIC" is only the first volume of a series of three being written by Lawrence Hickey and his research staff, "Revenge of the Red Raiders: the Illustrated History of the 22nd Bombardment Group in World War II" and "Eagles Over the Pacific" to which I plan purchase these as well in the near future.
